Kinshasa, DRC early 1900's - ?

Sans titre (Femme à l'enfant)

Huile sur carton

Signée, datée 1942, encadrée
28 x 22 cm

400 - 600 €

Albert Dombé was a Congolese painter from Thysville (now Mbanza-Ngungu) in the 1940s. He was very attached to his people's past and chose to resuscitate, through the evocation of daily life scenes, traditions whose growing oblivion he deplored. These scenes depict dancing, hunting, or fishing. This ideal of remembrance earned us a realistic artistic production, both anecdotal and spontaneous, without losing poetic sense. Above all, Dombé possessed a keen sense of composition and movement. None at the time surpassed him in describing the shimmering movements of the crowd, which are lively and expressed in brilliant colors.

Besides being a painter, he was also a writer, theatermaker, composer, and filmmaker.

This multitalented self-taught painter was a postman when he exhibited for the first time in 1947 in Leopoldville (today, Kinshasa). Afterward, he was tutored by the painter Laurent Moones at the Stanley Pool school Moreover, he exhibited his paintings at the Antwerp Colonial Exhibition in 1948. The talent of this self-taught artist was quickly recognized and driven by this first success, he continued his chosen path and specialized in landscape painting. Other themes that he painted were dance and hunting scenes and other aspects of "traditional" life He created in his art a simple and balanced color palette. Mongita Likele later became director of the National Theatre and director of Cultural Affairs.

Sans titre (Poissons)

Huile sur panneau isorel
Signée, années 50, encadrée

3 000 - 4 000 €

Bela is one of the best-known members of the Lubumbashi painting studio. The studio was founded by artist-patron Pierre Romain-Desfossés in the late 1940s, as a workshop called «Le Hangar» at the Indigenous Native Art Academy. His originality is achieved by painting with his finger, without using a pencil. This gives freshness and the spontaneity that makes the charm in Bela's art.

In addition, such a technique has a decorative effect. The artist's favorite themes are incredible large fish and aquatic scenes. Animals from the wilderness are also often depicted: whether peacefully grazing or hunted by man. There are also the initiation scenes sometimes with some fantasy, depicting nocturnal and sometimes humorous scenes, always with animals that conjure up complete freedom.

Towards the end of his life, he abandoned the finger technique in favor of the brush.

One of the doyens of modern Congolese painting In 1958 he participated in the Brussels Universal Exhibition and in 1966 his works were presented at the first festival of the black arts in Dakar. Nkusu is also deeply religious. This aspect of his personality appears in his many religiously inspired paintings. Living very close to the simple and traditional life, he transposes with great delicacy and taste the scenes of biblical life into an African context. His «Christs» are African. The Holy Family crosses a jungle village on the back of an antelope, the Miraculous Catch takes place on a Zairean River in a canoe He remains deeply attached, in his themes, to the roots of his land and loves the traditional art from which he draws his inspiration In 1978, the AICA/Zaire awarded him the Golden Palette, an insignia that rewards artists who have been active for at least thirty years

François Amisi is a scholar at the root of different styles of painting. For example, in the «flame» style, the shape of humans, animals and various objects is slightly distorted by the glow generated by flames.

In the years 1955-56, he perfected the «bled» style, in which forms are altered by stained glass. Always on the lookout for new and innovative techniques and creations, he also perfected in his studio the «chopped» and «cross» patterns. The painter also discovered what experts called the «whirlwind» style, which symbolized through movement the liveliness of the everyday life of men and women. This is why we also find in the painter's work scenes of dancing or hunting or even the hustle and bustle of crowded markets. He also depicts animals in freedom and objects such as masks, whose diversity of expression recalls the supernatural dimension of ancestral cults. Amisi's colorful universe gives life to sparkling works, full of charm, intensity and movement, which bring to life the many facets of the Congo. In his vibrant work, he succeeds in making tradition universal through his unique and timeless style.

Sans titre (Trio d'oiseaux)

Huile sur toile

Signée, datée 1959, encadrée

2 500 - 3 000 €

In the 1940s, the French painter Pierre Robert Desfossés established his workshop, "Le Hangar" in Elisabethville. Mwila was a student there during the mid-20th century.

The style of painting that emerged from Desfossés workshop is poetic-narrativist. It is seemingly flat and decorative due to its repetitive patterns. Like the painters of his generation, he draws his inspiration from nature to offer a dreamlike universe where life imposes itself in each brushstroke. This animal scene shows the sublime elegance of nature Lines full of harmony to delight us.

Mwenze Kibwanga, son of a weaver, was born in 1925 in Kilumba, Katanga province. In 1934, he started attending classes at the Protestant mission in Mwanza, where he also took drawing lessons.

He left the village in 1942 to settle in Elisabethville and continued his basic education with the Methodists for two more years. Unable to earn a living, he began to draw and was noticed by the Belgian Gaston Pletinckx in 1946, who took him under his wing and encouraged him to specialize in portraiture. In 1950, Kibwanga was admitted to the «l'Atelier du Hangar» founded by French painter, Romain-Desfossés. There, he developed his style, bringing his subjects to life through a technique of hatching and parallel lines alternating between light and dark tones that follow the shapes of people, animals, and vegetation. By reproducing the geometry of the wooden chisel, Mwenze developed a form of 'sculptural painting'. Sculptors of «traditional» statues inspired him. His scenes of the daily life of yesteryear have a very special interpretation.

In 1947, he managed to enter the young «Academy of Indigenous Art», the official name of the Hangar Workshop created by the former officer Pierre Romain-Desfossés. Later, PiliPili joined the Academy of Fine Arts in Lubumbashi as a teacher. Each scene in his paintings is meticulously executed and the movements are accentuated by the application of fine touches of bright colors that quickly catch the eye. His work is a window into a magical forest. Don't be surprised if you can feel the humid harmonies of the forest.

Born in 1959 in Kinshasa, Roger Botembe is one of the most talented artists of his generation. He is a major figure in Trans-Symbolism, a renaissance movement in contemporary African art, that is both figurative and realistic. The artist travelled all over Africa and the world to exhibit and teach. During his career as a painter, muralist and sculptor, he has received many awards, honors and accolades. Furthermore, he transcended tradition in his art by developing his paintings through the exploration of signs and symbols taken from traditional African sculptures and masks. In 1992, Roger Botembe founded Ateliers Botembe, a Congolese school of contemporary African art. In addition, he was Associate professor and head of the Arts-Plastiques section at the Académie des Beaux Arts in Kinshasa and director of International Cooperation and Promotion at the Institute of National Museums of Congo since 2006. As a painter, Roger Botembe believed in the essence of movement and mystery. He observed, astonished and translated life through increasingly enigmatic forms. His range of colors defined and dissolved somewhere between figurism and abstractionism.

Jean Pierre Mbalaka is one of the first artists to settle in Belgium to defend contemporary Congolese art. In fact, he undertook this mission on the advice of Jean Michel Basquiat, whom he had met in Harlem in 1985, where the latter had nicknamed him «the greatest ape in Africa». Later, the artist adapted this nickname to «Grandsinge» and evolved into a multi-faceted artist with a passion for art and an inexhaustible creativity that he developed in different artistic fields: visual and digital art, photography, textile design and music. His work translates a very singular vision of humanity in which the human being is in perpetual movement, experiencing a constant mutation in a changing universe. Beings trapped in their spirit, in their feelings. The deepest human forces come to light.

Born in 1993, Joycenath Tshamala Ntumba was initiated to painting at the Institute of Fine Arts in Kinshasa. In his art he has a rather interesting approach with collective and individual memory and uses different mediums. He imposes his artistic personality, which consists in giving life to unusual materials and supports, such as Compact-Discs (CDs). He cuts up cassettes and assembles them to create his work of illustrations of anonymous characters. As a painter and collagist, the work of Tshamala, is first and foremost innovative in conveying the ethical values of rebirth of lost value. A prevalent element in his work is rust, which is a priori a symbol of lapse. It is obtained through the manipulation of metals that he mixes with water, glue and other substances. Tshamala is an artist who skillfully plays with the connection between the real and the imaginary. Each work holds a story linked to the experience of the human being in general and of his own realities. His numerous artistic creations show that where life has been distorted, hope can always be reborn.

Raymond Tsham Mateng graduated from the Kinshasa Institute of Fine Arts from 1989. This talented draftsman has made a name for himself working with a simple black or colored Bic pen. He uses this pen to draw masks and figures from the Congo and elsewhere on paper, which he often presents in profusion. The sculptures explore the Congolese statuary heritage and archive sequences of history. He boldly confronts ancient hieratic and sacrificial art with today's European or American art. After working exclusively with black ballpoint pens for more than twenty years, Tsham reintroduced color into his work. Watercolors and colored pencils are used to shade the background or to highlight certain characters.

Jean-Bosco Monsengo also known as Shula is a talented and self-taught artist who was quickly recognized by his peers for the quality of his drawings. At the age of 15, he started working as an assistant of his cousin Moké (1950-2001), who was one of the fathers of popular painting and a master colorist. During this collaboration, Shula developed his unique style and technique based on color combinations that bring effects which seem to exceed tangibility. As an artist, he strongly believes that his narrative paintings, which are directly derived from everyday life, should be critical, denounce political injustices, raise awareness, and educate the population. This is why his paintings carry a message. Moreover, Shula's highly constructed narrative scenes offer new perspectives on universal issues such as global warming, international politics and technology. The artist's work brings a revolutionary twist to the traditional way of depicting the world. Instead of depicting reality, he tries to transcend it. His "Afro-futuristic" images invite the viewer into his fictional world filled with imaginary scenes. Since 2001 Shula's work has been receiving international fame and he has been participating in some major exhibitions of African Contemporary art. One of these exhibitions is Beauté Congo-1926-2015-Congo Kitoko at the Foundation Cartier in 2016. Shula's work is also widely represented in numerous fairs such as the Art Paris Art Fair.

François Thango, remarked by Pierre Lods, is one of the founders of the Centre for African Arts in Poto-Poto (1951) in Brazzaville. He is an artist with a great sensibility, who sometimes retreats in the forest to regain contact with nature, plants and especially the animals depicted which appear in his later paintings. He exhibited his work at the World Fair in Brussels in 1958. In 1959, Thango settled in Kinshasa (then Leopoldville), where he was hired by Maurice Alhadeff, who founded ateliers and is considered the great patron of artists from Kinshasa in the 40s and 50s. This collaborative venture bore fruit and made Thango internationally renowned. At first Thango's paintings were simple, evoking silhouettes of dancers and market scenes. However, other themes soon appeared, such as hunting, in which he depicted a lush plant life or animals. His style became increasingly graphic on uniform two-dimensional composition with vivid colors.

He was a student at Alhadeff School by the Belgian Maurice Alhadeff, promoting African art from 1950 to 1978. Mr. Alhadeff himself directly instructed Bazungula. There he developed his style of painting. In 1965, he met painter Bata Jean, who employed him as a sales assistant to sell his work. Bata Jean gave the young man the opportunity to observe the creative activity in the studio. In 1967, Bazungula began to paint and is now known for using a rich color palette in his work. His artistic creations hold a metaphysical message that goes beyond its environment and reality and emerges profoundly from Africa. From the 1960s on, Bazungula participated in numerous exhibitions in France, Italy, the United States, and DRC.

Little information exists about the early 20th-century Congolese painter Jos Toumba Kayeye. Despite this, he has a recognizable and renowned style. Kayeye painted landscapes, scenes of everyday life, death, nature, fauna and flora, and the inhabitants of villages. He illustrated popular legends such as Mamy Wata, a mermaid living in the Congo River who bewitched the male population. His paintings were brightly colored. Pure wisdom. A combination of ochre colors that offers universal wisdom. The freedom that only comes from knowing how to live. Faith in existence itself.
